

Waiting For Snow

8-16-00

Soldier Hollow on Friday hosted the U.S. and Ukrainian Biathlon teams. The venue, site of the 2002 Winter Olympic Nordic events, houses a newly completed competition/management building (pictured above) and nearly four kilometers of paved courses for summer training. At right: Rachel Steer of the U.S. Biathlon Team, takes aim. See page B1 for the story.

phone calls to affected customers; notifying local media ears of the faithful, and may have even been heard on High, we are still concerned that this method of communication is not inclusive to all members of the community.

Thursday night several the county had their elec- power shut off by Heber Power and Utah Power & we do not question the of the inconvenience of a interruption for the purpos- air on the system, we do about the methods used to public of the impending ence.

quiry of the problem to the conclusion that ht & Power must work in ealm than the pour souls away at Utah Power & en notice of the impend- loss was sent out, UP&L personal contact with e homes in their affected er Light & Power chose method of notifying the populace—spreading the a news release sent only OS wards.

his method of mass com- n definitely reaches the

This approach falls somewhat short of reaching those who may have differing religious persua- sions and do not attend these selected churches, or may number among the lost souls that did not attend church at all on that day.

While it is acknowledged that Heber Light and Power is a source of great power, we must submit that there is a greater power. The post office or telephone might be considered as more all encompass- ing in coverage and far less prov- oking to those who were not counted in the congregation.

We hope that Heber Light & Power will take heed of this mes- sage if for nothing more than avoiding the retribution of light- ning strikes that could be launched at them from powers greater than they.

Billionaires For Bush

H AND R

ask why billionaires like us get involved in politics, or nk that politics should be rom business. Well, let us s no better business than most of us, you're always higher returns on your And while you may be cks and bonds, currency and all the rest, there's a at arena you really ought Legislation.

fund returns 20 percent a onsidered unbelievably he low-risk, high return ation, a 20 percent return usy. Why, there's no rea-of initiative.

George Bush and Al Gore understand that if these losers start to see their wages rise or start to feel their power, it will be harder to find pliable low cost workers and affordable housekeepers, gardeners and chauffeurs.

Both these candidates' fathers were powerful Washington insiders. Both got rich in a business subsidized by taxpay- ers: Bush in oil, gas, and baseball stadi- ums; Gore in agribusiness. Both raised record amounts of cash from wealthy corporate and individual donors.

Both oppose raising the minimum wage to match the cost of living. Both support corporate-managed trade, via NAFTA, the World Trade Organization, and the International Monetary Fund. Both support the Federal Reserve policy of keeping wages low to prop up profits.

Let

From The Wave

Crime Is A Community Problem

Editor: I was surprised to see Scott Richie's comments about my editorial regarding our need to take responsibility for the actions of our children. Obviously, my editorial was not politically correct enough for Mr. Richie as I simply told it like it is.

He objected to my comment that our local juvenile delinquents are easy to spot. They are in fact. We recently had a serious crime spree in our neighborhood carried out by local youths. These particular kids have actually been a common topic of conversation between my neighbors and me (about six households) as they drive too fast and exhibit a general lack of respect for others. If someone had simply polled the neighborhood as to who may have been committing the crimes, I'm sure that 90 percent of the people polled would have correctly identified the actual doers.

In making these comments, I am in no way suggesting that our police depart- ment is not doing the job. As I mentioned spe

ext
res
be of pro
for
Co
fav to stil
to spe
po
tion
ask
wh
ma
req
bec

So